Rule 30

1. The grandfather clause of Ordinance 092-246, as amended, is interpreted as follows:

A business is grandfathered if,

- (a) it had a beer permit in effect on the effective date of the ordinance (May 26, 1992), or;
- (b) a business did not have a beer permit in effect on the effective date of the ordinance, but had one prior to the effective date of the ordinance, and the period between the last effective date of the prior permit and the date that a new application is filed does not exceed three hundred sixty-five (365) days. The time period is calculated as follows: the first day counted is the day after the last effective date of the permit, and the last day counted is the day that the application for a new permit is filed. If, however, the prior permit was granted after January 1, 1992, and was not subject to any distance requirement, the business shall not be grandfathered.

Any business grandfathered under either of the foregoing shall continue to be grandfathered so long as a beer permit remains 'in effect without a lapse of more than three hundred sixty-five (365) days, even if there is a change of ownership. The period without a permit (lapse) is counted as follows: the first day counted is the day after expiration of the prior permit and the last day counted is the day that the application for a new annual permit is filed.

2. The distance requirements do not apply to a retailer on-premises (on sale) permit that is: (1) for an establishment that is located in an MUL zoning district, as determined by Codes Administration, (2) that is obtained prior to April 30, 1993, and (3) that is for an establishment for which more than fifty percent (50%) of the gross sales are derived from the sale of food, excluding sales of alcoholic beverages. A retailer on-premises permit that is exempt from the distance requirements in accordance with the foregoing remains exempt so long as it remains in effect without a lapse of more than three hundred sixty five (365) days, even if there is a change of ownership. The period without a permit (lapse) is counted as follows: the first day counted is the day after expiration of the prior retailer on-premises permit and the last day counted is the day that the application for a new annual retailer on-premises permit is filed. The exemption does not apply to permits other than retailer on-premises permits or to any establishment that does not meet or does not continue to meet all requirements for exemption.

3. Additional rules of construction are as follows:

- (a) An effective beer permit includes a temporary beer permit, as long as all requirements for an annual beer permit were met at the time of issuance.
- (b) In counting the three hundred sixty five (365) days, all days are counted, including weekends, holidays, and other non-business days.
- (c) A permit in effect is one that has not expired, been revoked, or been surrendered.
- (d) Distances for special event permits shall be measured from the perimeter of the area where beer shall be stored, sold, and/or consumed.
- (e) Special events shall be grandfathered if the event was issued a special event permit during the one year prior to May 26, 1992, and is held at the same location as the prior year's event and shall continue to be grandfathered every year thereafter so long as the event is held annually, is held at the same location each year, and is issued a special event permit each year. If the event is not held, the location is changed, and/or a special event permit is not issued for the event in any year, the event will no longer be grandfathered.
