

Each Fall, Metro Beautification and Environment gives away daffodil bulbs to schools and community centers to use in landscaping and learning projects all across Nashville.

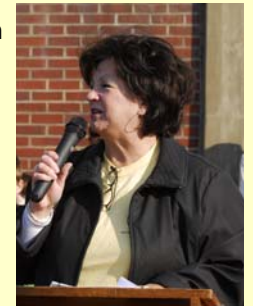

The November 20, 2008 daffodil bulb planting event at Crieve Hall Elementary was coordinated by District Councilman Greg Adkins, District 26 Metro Beautification Commissioner Ron Pinkleton and school staff.

Left – Mayor Karl Dean with District 26 Councilman Greg Adkins, Beautification Commissioner Ron Pinkleton and Kindergarten student Wilson Dakin

The daffodil bulb give away is an annual activity to involve children in beautifying Nashville by planting 6,000 bulbs at Davidson County schools, community centers, community gardens, day care centers, and other community locations. Children plant the bulbs in November and watch the yellow blossoms appear in early spring, making a personal connection to their community, nature and the cycle of seasons. Each location receives a minimum of 50 daffodil bulbs for the children to plant.

Metro Beautification Commission Chairman Russell Brecheen rallies students at Crieve Hall Elementary

Left – District 26 Metro Beautification Commissioner Ron Pinkleton, above right – Principal Linda Mickle, below right – Metro Beautification Executive Director Veronica Frazier

