Greetings from ...

December 13, 2017

Nashville is stronger because of the many different cultures that are woven into the fabric of our city. While our similarities vastly outweigh our differences, fully understanding those differences is critical to overcoming them. I want to thank you for taking time to gain a deeper understanding of the many diverse communities you have sworn to protect and serve. I know that the knowledge you gain today will help in forging stronger relationships within the community that will not only help solve crimes after they occur, but stop them before they ever start.

Mayor Megan Barry

Our partnership with the Human Relations Commission in conducting this community tour is part of our mission to ensure that the MNPd's newest police officers have a keen understanding of Nashville's diverse and constantly growing neighborhoods. Though there may be cultural differences from one person to the next, it is a priority for our police officers to build solid bonds throughout the community for the betterment of Nashville

Captain Steve Anderson

December 13, 2017

We are excited about our new partnership with the Metro Human Relations Commission concerning our Community Tour. We believe this partnership will offer great insight to our trainees regarding our diverse population and what they have to look forward to as they serve our community.

Captain Keith Stephens

All meaningful relationships are built on a foundation of trust and mutual respect. This includes the relationship between public servants and the communities they serve. The Metro Human Relations Commission is thrilled to partner with Metro Police Department on this full day cultural and diversity training intended to strengthen trust and respect between Nashville's diverse communities and the officers who serve and protect them. THANK YOU for your willingness to meet communities where they live and work; it is a real testament to your commitment.

IMPLICIT BIAS

Implicit bias describes the automatic associations individuals make between groups of people and stereotypes about those groups. Under certain conditions, those automatic associations can influence behavior, making people respond in biased ways even when they are not explicitly prejudiced. More than 30 years of research in neurology and social and cognitive psychology has shown that people hold implicit biases even in the absence of explicit bigotry, simply based on exposure to or insulation from the social world around them. Implicit racial bias has given rise to a phenomenon known as “racism without racists,” which can cause institutions or individuals to act on racial prejudices, even in spite of good intentions and nondiscriminatory policies or standards.

In the context of criminal justice and community safety, implicit bias has been shown to have significant influence in the outcomes of interactions between police and citizens. While conscious, “traditional” racism has declined significantly in recent decades, “research suggests that implicit attitudes may be better at predicting and/or influencing behavior than self-reported explicit attitudes.”¹

Discussions of implicit bias in policing tend to focus on implicit racial biases; however, implicit bias can also be expressed in relation to nonracial factors, including gender, age, religion, or sexual orientation. As with all types of bias, implicit bias can distort one’s perception and subsequent treatment—either positive or negative—of a given person or group. In policing, this has resulted in widespread practices that focus undeserved suspicion on some groups and presume other groups innocent.

Gaertner. 2000. “Reducing Contemporary Prejudice: Combating Explicit and Implicit Bias at the Individual and Intergroup Level.” In Reducing Prejudice and Discrimination, edited by Stuart Oskamp, 137–163. Reducing the influence of implicit bias is vitally important to strengthening relationships between police and minority communities. For example, studies suggest that implicit bias contributes to “shooter bias,” that is, the tendency for police to shoot unarmed Black suspects more often than White ones, as well as the frequency of police stops for members of minority groups.² Other expressions of implicit bias, such as public defenders’ prioritization of cases involving White defendants,³ can have negative impacts on communities and their perception of the justice system. This latter point is particularly significant in light of recent findings about the importance of procedural justice in fostering cooperation between citizens and the criminal justice system and cultivating law-abiding communities.

Despite these challenges, Phillip Atiba Goff, president of the Center for Policing Equity, believes that through training, policy review, and other interventions, the impact of implicit bias can be reduced. Research suggests that biased associations can be gradually unlearned and replaced with nonbiased ones,⁴ and that simply changing the context in which an interaction takes place can mediate the overall influence of bias.⁵ Consequently, through policy and training, it is possible to mend the harm that racial stereotypes do to our minds and our public safety.

Islamic Center of Nashville

2515 12th Avenue South, 37204

Midtown Hills Precinct

Who Are We?

Islamic Center of Nashville (also known as ICN), is one of the oldest mosques in Tennessee. It was founded in 1978 to help preserve the spiritual well-being of its members, as well as to foster a greater and better understanding between Muslims and people of other religious faiths. By October of 1979, as a result of financial resourcefulness and the blessing of the famous musician Cat Stevens, ICN became a reality.

ICN is a vibrant, diverse community that represents over 40 nationalities. Part of its mission is to participate in the general welfare of society through community service. Many of its service projects include Habitat for Humanity Builds, Red Cross, disaster relief efforts, and several additional initiatives.

Top 5 Little-Known Facts about Islam & Muslims

1 Islam shares many religious figures and historical events with Judaism and Christianity. In fact, Muslims greatly respect Jesus who is considered one of the most important prophets in Islam. The Quran (Islam's Sacred Text) mentions Christ in 25 various contexts, such as:

"...O Mary! God Giveth thee glad tidings of a word from him: His name will be Christ Jesus, the son of Mary." (Quran 3:45)

"...O Jesus, son of Mary! Remember My favor unto you and unto your mother; how I strengthened you with the holy Spirit, so that you spoke unto mankind in the cradle as in maturity." (Quran 5:109-110)

While Muslims do not consider Jesus to be the son of God, belief in him as a prophet and in the Gospel – along with many other books found in the Bible – are core concepts accepted by all practicing Muslims. Furthermore, the Quran calls both Christians and Jews “People of the Book” to honor our common religious legacy.

2 Islam is not an “Eastern” religion. Contrary to popular belief, Islam had been a central part of European history for centuries. In Spain, a Muslim dynasty was established and prospered for over 700 years, ending in 1492 and the Spanish Inquisition. Also, Muslims had a huge presence in the Balkans. Eastern European Muslims survived communism and continue to live there today.

3 "Allah" is an Arabic word that means "God." The Islamic concept of God is that He is loving, merciful and compassionate. Muslims neither worship Muhammad nor pray through him. Muslims solely worship the Unseen and Omniscient Creator.

4 In the Quran, men and women enjoy the same spiritual, educational, and economic status and rights. "For Muslim men and women and for believing men and women, for devout men and women, for true men and women, for men and women who are patient and constant, for men and women who humble themselves, for men and women who give in charity, for men and women who fast (and deny themselves), for men and women who guard their chastity, and for men and women who engage much in Allah's praise, for them has Allah prepared forgiveness and great reward" (Quran 33:35)

While serious inequalities between men and women exist in many Muslim majority countries, it is also true that gender inequalities exist in virtually all societies on earth. Of note, is that several Muslim majority countries have had female heads of state, including Pakistan, Indonesia, Bangladesh and Turkey.

5 There are an estimated 1.6 billion Muslims in the world, which is about 1/5 of the world's population. Muslims, speak many languages and come from nearly every race, ethnicity and culture in the world.

Oasis Center

1704 Charlotte, Suite 200 37203

North Precinct

Who Are We?

Founded in 1969 to provide community-based care for youth experiencing alcohol and drug problems, Oasis Center has evolved over the past four decades into one of the nation's leading youth-serving organizations. We offer safety, support, and life-changing opportunities to nearly 3000 youth and their families each year while seeking to teach young people how to transform the conditions that create problems for them in the first place.

We believe that Nashville should and can be a model community where all young people enter adulthood connected with positive social support systems and prepared for productive and fulfilling lives.

Oasis views young people as full stakeholders who hold the keys to addressing some of the most challenging problems facing our city, including violence reduction, improved graduation rates, bullying prevention, discrimination and intolerance. Our young people represent the diversity of Nashville's residents, and hail from more than 60 different schools and homes that speak 26 different languages.

Clarifying Common LGBTQIA Terms

Posted 08/11/2014 by Kayley Weinberg & filed under LGBTQIA Rights.

“Sex” = biological status assigned at birth (typically categorized as male, female, or intersex)

“Gender” = attitudes, feelings, and behaviors a given culture associates with a biological sex.

“Sexual orientation” = inherent and enduring emotional, romantic or sexual attraction to other people. Generally refers to the sex of those to whom one is sexually and romantically attracted. While categories of sexual orientation typically have included attraction to members of one’s own sex (gay men or lesbians), attraction to members of the other sex (heterosexuals), and attraction to members of both sexes (bisexuals), sexual orientation does not always appear in such definable categories and instead occurs on a continuum and is fluid for some people.

“Gender identity” = innermost concept of self as male, female, a blend of both or neither; how individuals perceive themselves and what they call themselves. (Gender identity can be the same or different from their sex assigned at birth.)

“Transgender” = general term for people whose gender identity and/or expression is different from cultural expectations based on the sex they were assigned at birth. Being transgender does not imply any specific sexual orientation. Therefore, transgender people may identify as straight, gay, lesbian, bisexual, etc. NOTE: when referring to someone who is transgender, avoid the use of the word “transgendered.” Also do not say, ‘Tony is a transgender,’ or ‘The parade included many transgenders.’ Instead say, ‘Tony is a transgender man,’ or ‘The parade included many transgender people.’”

“Cisgender” = a term for people whose self-identify conforms with the their gender that corresponds to their biological

Sources: Most of these definitions are borrowed from the Human Rights Campaign, the National Center for Lesbian Rights, GLADD, and a number of organizations that advocate on behalf of transgender people.

Fisk University

Jubilee Hall LLC

1000 17th Avenue North, 37208

North Precinct

Who Are We?

Founded in 1866, shortly after the end of the Civil War, Fisk University is a historically black university, and is the oldest institution of higher learning in Nashville, Tennessee. Fisk produces graduates from diverse backgrounds with the integrity and intellect required for substantive contributions to society. Our curriculum is grounded in the liberal arts and we are committed to the success of scholars and leaders with global perspectives.

Jubilee Hall LLC — undoubtedly the most striking of Fisk's campus buildings — is perhaps the most famous college residence hall in the world. Having been constructed with proceeds from the historic 1871 Jubilee Singers' tour, it is the first permanent structure erected in the South for the education of African Americans. Jubilee Hall has been a designated National Historic Landmark since its centennial in 1976. In 1984 Jubilee Hall underwent historic rehabilitation with funds provided through the United States Department of the Interior. Of special interest is the Appleton Room of Jubilee Hall, totally refurbished and adorned with a 14th-century ceiling from the Castle Polheim in Austria.
