

LOCKELAND SPRINGS PARK

HISTORIC SITE AND NATURAL SPRINGS

Lockeland Springs Park is a unique piece of property located in the heart of urban Nashville. The natural springs have served the community for centuries before and after the water bottling system was in operation.

Today the site functions as a gathering place, an outdoor classroom, a natural oasis, a home for many plants and animals, and as a hydrological system at work in the heart of the community.

This master plan celebrates the natural and historical components of the site. Limited enhancements including improved site accessibility, signage and gathering areas will help neighbors enjoy the site without disturbing the natural feel and functions of the site.

MASTER PLAN

Lockeland Springs Park Context