Our next, school-wide celebration is on Friday, February 24, 2017 at Carter-Lawrence Elementary School. Could someone who works in uniform be a Spotlight Reader? In this role, he or she ideally will participate in uniform, is comfortable with children, and will read a book to a classroom. The story behind this is we are adding a "layer" to the event to educate the students about career options this year...by having professional people read to the classes while wearing their work uniforms or costumes. This way, the students can better say "Oh, that's what a police officer looks like up close" or "That's what a judge wears," etc.
